Dear Colleagues:

Greetings!!!

On behalf of the organizing committee, I take this opportunity in extending a warm and cordial welcome to you to be part of Asian PGPR Satellite Workshop on February 25th, 2016 to be held jointly with Indian Phytopathological Society International Conference on “Plant, Pathogens and People” with the mission “Challenges in Plant Pathology to Benefit Humankind” at NASC Complex, New Delhi, India during February 23-27, 2016. Our theme for the workshop is “PGPR’s for Sustainable Crop Productivity”. This workshop is being organized by Dr. K. Annapurna and Dr A. Kumar of IARI and coordinated by Dr. Pratibha Sharma, General Secretary, Indian Phytopathological Society.

It is an immense pleasure and privilege having you here with us to honor your hard-earned scientific discoveries, innovations and would like you to share, extend and impart your valuable thoughts to the global scientific community.

Workshop Highlights:

1. Basis of plant-microbe interaction for plant health and promotion
2. Application technologies

Major Scientific Topics:

- Molecular basis of plant-microbe interactions
- Rhizosphere microbiome
- Molecular basis of microbe triggered plant-growth promotion
- Endophytic microbes and their role in plant health and promotion
- Legume and non-legume biological nitrogen fixation
- Microbe induced plant genes
- Delivery
- Formulations
- Technology transfer
- Up-scaling and production
- Registration

Please read the enclosed brochure for details. Also enclosed the brochure of our host IPS for details. Delegate's wishes to attend Asian PGPR workshop are entitled two day's events (Asian PGPR workshop on February 25 and February 26th's IPS 2016 conference) includes lunches, dinners, registration kit etc. without any extra registration fee.
